

Instructions for Preparing the CRC Version of Your Paper (Eurographics)

(Camera Ready Copy — Final Version for Publication)

1. General Information

The CRC (Camera Ready Copy) is the final version of the paper that will be transferred to production and published in the Eurographics Digital Library and, for CGF-track conferences, in Computer Graphics Forum (Wiley).

Before submitting the CRC version, authors must carefully verify all manuscript content, metadata, and author information. The CRC submission represents the final publication-ready version of the paper.

After submission of the CRC version:

- ✗ the scientific content can no longer be modified
- ✗ the paper title cannot be changed
- ✗ the abstract cannot be changed
- ✗ keywords cannot be changed
- ✗ the list of authors cannot be changed
- ✗ the order of authors cannot be changed
- ✗ author affiliations cannot be changed
- ✗ author email addresses cannot be changed
- ✗ the corresponding (contact) author cannot be changed
- ✗ the corresponding author's email address cannot be changed
- ✗ funding information cannot be changed
- ✗ acknowledgements cannot be changed
- ✗ the selected license becomes final
- ✓ the paper is considered ready for publication

These restrictions are particularly important for conferences jointly published with Wiley. After CRC submission, the paper metadata are transferred to multiple production, licensing, DOI registration, indexing, and publication systems. Any modification may create inconsistencies between Eurographics records, Wiley records, DOI registrations, licensing information, indexing services, and the final published version.

Therefore, all authors are responsible for ensuring that the manuscript, metadata, author information, abstract, keywords, and licensing details are complete, accurate, and approved by all co-authors before submitting the CRC version.

Exceptions may only be considered in extraordinary circumstances and require explicit approval from both the conference chairs and the Eurographics Publishing Team.
